ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination as alderman from ward 1, subject to the action of the Democratic primary, September 14th.

W. T. Magliary.

Dothan will average up with other towns, we suppose, in intellect, and therefore, we would like to know just how many people there are who think they are going to get a Ford car free when they get together enough dimes for a small initial letter found on some, to spell it a word Ford. Probably we have fifty people in Dothan who joyously tell you that they have all of them but the "f" and the "r," and each and every one knows a friend who knows a party whose name he has just received their new Ford. Now the report got around, as we come to know, and in one moment we have thought about writing Mr. Ford for full particulars, requesting maps and drawings and diagrams.

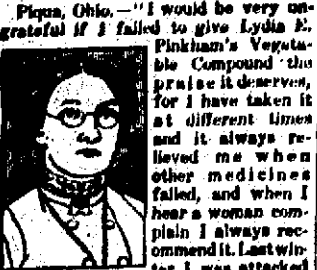

Because cotton is selling at half price, that makes no sufficient cause why you should sell for a lower price than they sold for last year. The mills may figure that because the farmer can't get much money out of a bale of cotton that he will sell his seed at a low price. The farmer must consider the fertilizer value of his seed. Next spring, when he is told that owing to the European war, potash has been put out of reach, he will need all the cotton seed he can get. This is the time to haul the seed back home, and let them stay.

It'll be a sight from now on, to look at and handle the big yams that are brought to this town. A negro living here in the incorporation of Hanks, had a ten-pound sweet potato yesterday, that had grown so fast it split into great furrows, and the potato was grown in the back yard, and watered during the dry spell. And nearly every back yard of nearly every negro house in Dothan, you can find a few sweet potatoes put out, and a few rows of cukes, for table use.

The man addicted to reading his Bible often wonders how men were educated in those days, who practiced such cruel warfare, but thousands of years of civilization, and uncounted years of talk hasn't helped matters much.

FEELS LIKE A NEW WOMAN

As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Dispelled Backache, Headaches and Dizziness.

Piqua, Ohio.—"I would be very grateful if I failed to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise it deserves, for I have taken it at different times and it always relieved me when other medicines failed, and when I hear a woman complain I always recommend it. Last winter I was attacked with a severe case of organic weakness. I had backache, pains in my hips and over my kidneys, headache, dizziness, lassitude, had no energy, limbs ached and I was always tired. I was hardly able to do my housework. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on one other occasion, and it had helped me so I took it again and it has built me up, until now I feel like a new woman. You have my hearty consent to use my name and testimonial in any way and I hope it will benefit suffering women."—Mrs. ORPHA TURNER, 421 S. Wayne St., Piqua, Ohio.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

WHAT WILL THE WAR BRING IN EUROPE?

Birmingham Ledger.

Germany has conquered France. That is the second result of the war. The first was the absorption of Belgium. Does the conquest of France and the war? There is no reason to think it does. There are three nations in the alliance against Germany. One of them is rapidly being crushed despite the aid of its allies. With France humbled Germany will still have to meet Russia on her east. That great country has never been conquered and never can be. Already winter approaches and no foreign foe can invade Russia further than the great Napoleon did, before he had to flee, leaving a dead army on Russian soil. Germany need hope for no glory in fighting Russia. If she took some territory from her it would only be a temporary victory. Russia is always to be counted on, and in this way she is unshaking her armies from her own bases and is in infantry distance of safety all the while.

On the other hand England holds the sea between herself and Germany. She may lose most of the men she has put in France, but she can't prevent Germany from crossing the sea, narrow as it is, to invade her. Even Napoleon hesitated and then decided not to invade England. True, Germany has a fleet, and a good one, but she has it hidden in her own waters, protected by a field of mines. Plainly she did not intend to make this war on the sea after England decided to fight her, and backed her ships into a corner, planted mines between them and any enemy, and there they stay. So England does not fear an invasion and does not fear any loss of prestige on the sea. England, if she has to retire from France will stand ready to resist invasion and ready to sink Germany's fleet if it dares to leave its hiding place.

So, if Germany captures Paris and makes France desolate, only one enemy of her three is destroyed, and the other two can retire to impregnable positions and continue the war at their will, both having resources and access to food. Not so with Germany. If she cannot buy from Russia, and if England does not allow food to go to her from the United States, Germany must make terms. She has no food, reserve. There comes the turning point. We were told this was a war for determining whether the Teuton or the Slav was to govern Europe. If Germany had been crushed it would have decided the fate of the Teuton governor, but we see small evidence that the Slav will not continue to grow, for certainly he will be present. This war will not decide whether the Teuton or Slav shall rule, unless the tide of war rolls over Russia, which is impossible. It begins to look as if the war will decide nothing except that France cannot fight Germany.

A farmer said the other day, that the price for picking cotton was too high. There are men, he said, who are spending two or three bales of cotton to rush the crop out, who have force enough on their place to pick out the crop within a few days. He figures that if storms come and destroy a bale or two, that it is cheaper than paying out the same number of bales now, where the force is fed by the farmer.

Blessings often come in disguise. Who knows but that the present European war will be worth more to this country than anything could have happened? It may be the cause of new trade channels being opened up; and it may be the cause of getting the cotton planter ready for the march of the boll weevil.

The fact that the Dothan city schools were opened this week with a good attendance,—much better than had been expected,—shows that it takes something more serious than a low price of cotton to keep children out of school.

The best news we can get from the east now is the news that they are figuring on making some kind of a settlement with the warring factions.

The history of wars in the past goes to show that the army that is best prepared for war doesn't always win.

We have lots of people who can tell us what will stop the war, and when it is likely to stop.

The "military lurch," should be the next new step in dancing coming out of Paris.

Automobile Tire Prices LOWER

We Give Below Our Reduced Prices on Standard Guaranteed Tires and Tubes

Although practically every Rubber Company in the United States manufacturing Automobile tires increased their price last week from 12 1/2 to 20 per cent, we protected our interest as well as that of the trade and bought a large quantity just before the raise and we are therefore in position to offer you these low prices which is a very large discount from the old price list.

THE SICK MAN OF THE EAST

By HERBERT TEMPLE

(European Manager of the International News Service.)

London, Sept. 7.—All to gain and nothing to lose. That is the status of Turkey in the Great European war. None in touch with the situation, military expert or diplomat, was surprised when the "Sick Man of the East" decided to take a hand in the fracas. The only wonder was that Turkey did not get in sooner.

Doubtless the Porte was waiting to see "which way the act jumped." If the allies had started out victorious, Turkey might have lost her lot with her great and good friend, England. But the success of German arms in France, the steady pounding of the German lines, daily forging ahead, nearer and nearer to Paris, probably convinced Turkey that the safest place would be on the side of Germany.

Therefore Turkey declared war against the allies. Her objective is supposed to be the Russian Caucasus and Egypt, which country formerly belonged to Turkey.

In this war, Turkey has nothing to lose, because the Balkan Alliance stripped her of almost all of her European territory in the war that began two years ago. The government is bankrupt and has no money. It is fighting on borrowed money and doubtless the Porte thinks it might as well be a little deeper in debt as in its present financial condition. When a government is already bankrupt without a very flattering prospect of paying off its obligations, it may not hesitate to incur a few more. "Might as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb" is probably the attitude of the government.

Also Turkey had an army of some 600,000 men left over from the Balkan wars. She had to keep them in arms, because of the threatened second war with Greece, and it may be that the Porte thought these men might as well be fighting somebody.

But the most probable explanation of Turkey's participation in the war is that she was persuaded by Germany. The fact that about seventy-two German officers are with the Turkish army gave notice to the world, early in the struggle that if Turkey came in, she would be on the side of Germany. Should the Kaiser win out in the big war, with Turkey as an ally, it would be an excellent thing for Turkey.

The Balkan states that are Turkey's enemies, the states which partitioned Turkey in Europe, are Slavonic, and as such are on the side of Russia. Germany has asserted that her principal enemy in the great conflict is Russia, the Germans fighting originally to prevent the consummation of the Pan-Slavonic Union.

Therefore if Turkey should be on the winning side at the end of the war, it might help her considerably in regaining some of her lost territory, particularly the Aegean Islands, most of which went to Greece at the end of the Balkan war.

When Turkey mobilized her troops and declared war, it was said that she already had taken steps to attack Egypt. That African country, which formerly was a Turkish possession, is now a British Protectorate, though nominally autonomous, under the Khedive. To retake Egypt it would be necessary only for the Turks to defeat a small British army now in that country. England is far too busy just now on the Continent to devote much attention to Egypt.

With the Czar having his hands full with Austria and with Germany in East Prussia and in Russian Poland, the Turkish government might figure that it would be a safe thing to invade the Caucasus, and win back some of the territory that Russians originally wrested from the Constantinople government.

At any rate, Turkey had nothing to gain by remaining neutral, little more to lose than she already has lost and in a general Armageddon, such as is now raging throughout Europe, almost anything might happen.

A CONFESSION

Exposes Her Statement, Made Public, will Help Other Women.

Hines, Ala.—"I must confess," says Mrs. Eula Mae Reid, of this place, "that Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done me a great deal of good."

Before I commenced using Cardui, I would spit up everything I ate. I had a tired, sleepy feeling all the time, and was irregular. I could hardly drag around, and would have severe headaches continuously.

Since taking Cardui, I have entirely quit spitting up what I eat. Everything seems to digest all right, and I have gained 10 pounds in weight.

If you are a victim of any of the numerous ills so common to your sex, it is wrong to suffer.

For half a century, Cardui has been relieving just such ills, as is proven by the thousands of letters, similar to the above, which pour into our office, year by year.

Cardui is successful because it is composed of ingredients which act specifically on the womanly constitution, and helps build the weakened organs back to health and strength.

Cardui has helped others, and will help you, too. Get a bottle today. You won't regret it. Your druggist sells it.

INFANT'S BEAL VICTIM.

In the wake of raging waters, drenching Earth's fair flowered breast,
Which the tender arms of Springtime had but recent caressed,
Where, but lately, youth and beauty drew their joyous, helpful breath
Now are lying scores and hundreds, in the clammy clasp of death.

And our hearts are filled with sorrow by the tidings of each day;
There's a pang of real pity for each sudden corpse of clay,
Poor, deserted home of mortal who has sought the final goal,
Gone—old habits of some one who, at last, has freed his soul.

But the dead are dead forever, and the living, too, must die,
And, with but a sigh of pity for the dead, we pass them by;
What is left us is unfeeling, though the future still be fair—
That has gone, has gone from sorrow, to a Savior's tender care.

But for those heretofore of loved ones, and of home and fortune, too,
With the span of life before them 'neath the sky of leaden hue,
With the tide of hope fast ebbing—oh, in pity, bend your knees,
For the homeless, loveless, hopeless—god be merciful to these!

WHOM SHOULD MARRY.

I would not marry Adam Ant,
For he's too hard and cold,
Timid I would not wed,
I like a man that's bold.

I do not fancy Nick O'Tine,
He smokes too much for me,
Jim Nae might win me if he tried,
But not Sol Emilly.

I'm rather fond of Jack Mine,
He brings me loads of flowers,
And Perry Vere has pleaded for
My hand for hours and hours.

I like dear, clever Hugh Moriel,
He's genuinely funny,
As for my folks, they think that I'm
Cut out for Matt Rimney.

Tom Anderson I'd never accept,
Tom Feckery is silly,
But Tator I could never stand,
I won't wed Willy Nully.

My heart is "yes" to Dan Debed,
He's a real swell a top.

But I'd marry Corn Hoopla
If Corn would only pop.

BAPTIST TEACHERS ENTER- TAINED AT SOCIAL.

On Monday afternoon at the First Baptist church the Teachers and officers of the Sunday School entertained at a most enjoyable social.

The Sunday school rooms were attractively decorated in shades of salvia and red senlis.

QUIT AN O. O. P. HEAD, TAKING FLING AT PROGRESSIVES

William Barnes, often called the "boss" of the Republican party in New York state, has publicly eliminated himself as a candidate for re-election to the chairmanship of the Republican state committee. In his valedictory Barnes takes a fling at the Progressives by declaring that his action removes the "only reason" which the Progressives assert for continued existence. Ogden L. Mills is the man most talked of as the new state chairman.

WORK THAT WINS PATRONS' PRAISE

That is the Invariable Record Made
By Dr. J. E. Masrow.

His record before he came to Dothan was one of success. He always gave satisfaction to his patrons. He found ways for correcting eye defects that were usually looked upon as impossible. He has gone the same road in Dothan. Nearly every day he has somebody to tell him by which they have tried and tried elsewhere to be properly fitted without success. Dr. Masrow has been so successful with such cases that he now invites them to come and see him.

He can be seen every day this week with offices over the Cash Drug Store on the same floor with Dr. Moody at 111 East Main St. adv

HOW THE POLES LOST THEIR FREEDOM

There are today approximately 200,000 Poles in the German and Austrian armies, and 400,000 Poles under arms for Russia who are opposing them. Military experts point out the possibility that the Poles were aiming to alienate the Polish soldiers of Russia's enemies when he issued his recent proclamation, promising autonomy for the ancient kingdom of Poland.

Poland disappeared as an independent and integral state in 1772 when the first partition of the kingdom was effected among Russia, Austria and Prussia. There was a second partition in 1793 and the third and last partition occurred in 1795. The division of the Polish kingdom among the three powers, Russia, Prussia and Austria was rearranged by the Congress of Vienna in 1815. In the re-arrangement, the shares of Prussia and Austria were reduced and the Grand Duchy of Warsaw was added to the Russian Empire.

The Grand Duchy of Warsaw, or the very much truncated kingdom of Poland was absolutely autonomous and independent of Russia, the only bond of union being personal, the same monarchs being the sovereign of each state. The Czar was represented by a Viceroy and a council of state. A constitution was granted of a fairly liberal character. There was a parliament of two houses, a nominated senate and an elected chamber. The Polish language was the official medium. The Catholic church was given equality of treatment. Public employment was restricted to Poles.

This pleasant arrangement continued until 1831, when the Poles, alleging abuses by Russia, arose in rebellion and were crushed utterly by the Czar. Their constitution was taken away, their parliament abolished, their army added to that of Russia and the Russian language was substituted for Polish and made compulsory. All principal posts were filled by Russians.

In this state the Poles have lived until now. They have been scattered to all parts of the world, to Germany, France, England, and America.

In the present war it is estimated that 111,000 Poles are fighting with Germany, 82,000 with Austria and 400,000 with Russia.

The Czar's proclamation may then perhaps be taken as a pledge to restore the constitution of 1815, not only to the Grand Duchy of Warsaw, but to the whole of old Poland as it was before the first partition in 1772.

Russia could not fulfill this pledge, therefore, unless the allies are victorious in the great war. Parts of the old kingdom are held by Germany and Austria and they would never consent to restore their Polish lands unless Russia should be in position to dictate terms of peace.

Germany would have to yield up to the proposed restored kingdom of Poland about 20,000 square miles of territory and Austria about 35,000 square miles. It may be supposed that Russia would also surrender her shares of the partitioned territory, about 220,500 square miles.

Thus, there would appear on the map of Europe "after the war," a large new state of approximately 287,500 square miles of rich and valuable territory, or nearly five times the size of England and Wales. The total population would be about as large as that of Spain. It would be rather heterogeneous in race and religion.

The purpose of the Czar's proclamation may have been two-fold, to prevent an uprising in Russian Poland, which always is threatening, and to induce revolts in German Poland and Austrian Galicia.
